VOL. VII. GLENDALE (LOS ANGELES POSTOFFICE), LOS ANGELES COUNTY, CAL., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1911 No. 22

CITY TRUSTEES

City Hall Bids Opened, Anderson & Murdock the Lowest—Water to be Protected

All members present. A long list of demands was presented and referred. The order of business was changed and the bids on city hall were opened and declared as follows:

Frank M. Walton, complete, except heating, $7393; John Nelson, $6835; E. D. Yard, $6800; Riley Bros., $8000; Perkins & Holcomb (except plumbing, heating and painting), $6860; Anderson & Murdock (plumbing, heating and painting excepted), $6256.20; W. M. Tucker (except heating), $9440.10.

Bids on painting alone were submitted for $780.50, $550 and $450, respectively.

For plumbing, $550 and $560.

For heating, $680 and $460. Action deferred.

The resignation of health officer, submitted to last meeting was withdrawn, withdrawal being accepted.

The city attorney reported that he had notified Mr. Boswell that the law regarding the keeping of poultry near the source of our water supply, would be enforced. The report was laid on the table and later was discussed at considerable length. (The reports indicate that the place alluded to is a direct menace to the purity of our water, and the opinion of the trustees is apparently unanimous to the effect that it is a nuisance that must be abated. No damage will be done however before the rains come.)

Mr. Stanton of Casa Verdugo addressed the board in regard to the proposed formation of a road improvement district in the section from Fourth street north on Central avenue to Kenneth road. The matter was to come up before the supervisors on the following day and he requested that the city trustees make no protest before that body. After considerable discussion the board acceded to Mr. Stanton's request and rescinded former action.

A communication was received from G. A. Renton objecting to use of sidewalks for roller skaters, coasting, etc., and requesting that ordinance be enforced. This led to a lengthy informal discussion in which great sympathy was expressed by some of the trustees for the children who get their amusement in this way. It was finally decided to leave the enforcement of the ordinance to the discretion of the marshal.

An ordinance establishing the grade of a portion of Second street and a portion of Sinclair avenue was taken up and read first and second times.

The supply committee reported against giving a contract to the GLENDALE NEWS for the city printing, the proprietor of that paper having offered to do the work at lower rate on condition of receiving a contract. The board adopted the report, but rescinded this action when the proprietor of the NEWS suggested that the matter be referred to the city attorney, as he believed that the statutes makes it mandatory to enter into a contract. Action deferred awaiting the city attorney's opinion.

In committee of the whole after formal adjournment the trustees agreed to accept at their next regular meeting the bid of Anderson & Murdock for the erection of the city hall. The total bid including plumbing, painting and heating amounting to $7506.50.

BUILDING PERMITS.

L. D. Rising, 710 W. Seventh, J. Andrews, contractor; $1800 cottage.

Dr. R. C. Lane, Doran near Brand, one-story residence, $4000.

P. A. Moore, 255 E. Ninth St., one-story five rooms; $1500.

M. E. Plasterer, 109 N. Kenwood street, Chas. W. Kent, contractor; $2000.

R. Rowe, 228 Belmont street, five room cottage; $1800.

J. W. Lawson, Sixth and Kenwood streets, six room cottage; $2000.

WORTH WHILE CLUB.

The Worth While Club of the Presbyterian church held its regular business meeting at the home of Miss Zada Sprinkle on Monday evening. After the business was transacted there was an interesting program with Oliver Wendell Holmes as the subject, led by Miss Frances Jackson.

THE SCHOOLS

New Features at High School—Large Enrollment at All—New Law Affecting Grammar Schools

The following is an extract from a letter issued by Mark Keppel, county superintendent of schools: "A pupil may not attend school outside of his own district, without the consent of the governing body of both districts concerned, or upon a permit issued by the county superintendent of schools upon an appeal from the action of the two boards concerned." Upon the application of a permit, the pupil is obliged to deposit the sum of $3.88 or $35.00 per year. The money received will go to the school of the district in which the pupil resides.

HIGH SCHOOL.

New pupils are still entering, the total as yet only being about equal to last year's, 252; but it will continue to grow.

Rev. Henry dropped in Tuesday morning and entertained the pupils with one of his bright and instructive talks.

The newly established agricultural department under the direction of Prof. Taylor, promises to be an interesting and very practical part of the year's work. At present a half dozen of the boys are taking special work in this deaprtment. Mr. Taylor keeps in close touch with the state department of agriculture at Berkeley and proposes to conduct a bureau of information along agricultural lines. The practical work just now consists in propagation by budding, grafting, slipping etc. The lath house erected last year will be the scene of many interesting and instructive experiments. A year's course in this department is expected to be the full equivalent of a similar course in the university. Mr. Taylor is also instructor in botany and general science.

Prof. Root, one of the new additions to the faculty, has a special class of nine or ten, receiving instruction in debating.

Mrs. Gibson is much pleased with the outlook for musical work the coming year; the graduates of this department will be duly accredited to the normal schools, the course having been duly approved. The practical feature of the musical department is being illustrated by the fact that several pupils who expect to follow music for a profession are now numbered among the students enrolled for special instruction. The use of the Victrola with selections from the great artists is recognized as a valuable adjunct to the work of familiarizing pupils with the output of the masters. A glee club has been selected from which unusually good work is expected. The orchestra is made stronger than last year by the addition of several pieces, and includes saxaphone, trombone, two clarionettes, drum and six violins. The membership of the mandolin club is now full.

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS.

The Glendale grammar schools are now in full sway. The new intermediate school in the temporary building on Third street starts in with promise of excellent work under the supervision of Mr. Anderson. The seventh and eighth grades are domiciled there to the number of 94 pupils. At the Fourth street school the entries for the first day were 169 and at the Sixth street buildings, 168.

The following list shows the expenditure for teachers and janitors: Intermediate, four teachers, including principal, $470 a month. Janitor $25 a month.

Fourth Street—Six teachers, including principal, $565 a month. Janitor $57.50. The salaries here are divided as follows: Principal, $130; three at $90, one at $85, one at $80.

Sixth Street—Six teachers, including principal, $550 a month. Janitor $45. Salaries divided as follows: Principal $125, two at $90, two at $80, one at $85.

Two special teachers, working in all the schools, teaching sloyd, domestic science, drawing, etc., $260 a month.

NEW LAW AS TO SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

As stated last week, the money now received from state and county is based upon average attendance and in regard to this a circular issued by the county superintendent gives in detail rules as to its practical application. A few of these are here quoted.

Principals are cautioned not o receive pupils from other districts. If a pupil is ten minutes late, it takes off a quarter day from his credit and the school's. Every day's absence on the part of a pupil loses money for the school. One child's full attendance earns for the district about $35.00 for the year—this sum about covers the cost per child—hence it follows that taxpayers whether parents or not have a personal interest in securing full attendance of all pupils in the district. If the attendance is not high enough to bring to the district the sum necessary to maintain its schools, the shortage must be made up by special tax. Under this law also the attendance of children from outside districts must be reported to the county superintendent who credits back to the district where the children belong, the amount earned by them in their attendance. In other words the average attendance of children is credited not to the district whose schools they attend necessarily, but to the district in which their parents reside. This explains why trustees are warned not to admit pupils from other districts. In the Glendale district the attendance last year only earned about $30 a head, leaving the shortage of $5.00 a pupil to be collected from the district by special tax.

Another feature which this law calls attention to is the fact that every pupil attending a private school is costing the district money lost by non-attendance at the district's public schools. The Glendale district lost last year something like $1400 through the working out of this principle.

(It is the intention of the NEWS during the year to give special attention to the schools, particularly to expenditures; not in the way of criticism but solely for the purpose of informing the people as to the disposition of their money. Any inquiry from patrons as to this subject will be answered to the best of our ability.)

EMILY TAYLOR SANFORD.

Emily Taylor Sanford, the widow of the late Heman H. Sanford, fell asleep at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Elmer K. Fisher, 241 Orange street, the evening of September 1st, 1911.

Although she had been failing for several months she had been about as usual until her death which was due to her advanced years. Mrs. Sanford was the only daughter of Stephen W. and Eunice Taylor, and sister of Benj. F. Taylor, poet and lecturer, and Alfred Taylor, instructor of elocution.

She was born Sept. 13th, 1833, at Lowville, N. Y. At the age of fourteen she entered what is now Colgate University, of which her father was the first president, during her course especially excelling in Greek and mathematics. After graduation she was engaged in teaching at Wooster, Mass., Lewisburg, Pa., and Elbridge, N. Y., also conducted a private school at Hamilton, N. Y., having among her pupils Dr. Edw. Judson. June 17th, 1857, she was united in marriage to Heman H. Sanford, who for over thirty years was instructor in higher institutions of learning in the East, and with her came to reside at Glendale about six years ago, and who preceded her to the better land a little over two years since.

Besides her daughter she is survived by one son, Wm. J. Sanford, also of Glendale. The funeral was conducted by her former pastor, J. F. Moody, now of Alhambra, assisted by Rev. Eugene Haines, pastor of the Baptist Church of this place, of which she was a faithful and consistent member.

In her earlier years she spent much of her time as a pastor's assistant.

"In the Christian's home in glory
There remains a land of rest."

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

Busy as bees, the last few weeks have been the board and various committees of the Tuesday Afternoon Club planning the work for the new year. The program committee, especially, has been very active with their work of securing speakers and musicians and preparing the year book for publication. The book was given to the printers this week, and we hope will be in the hands of each club member not later than the first of the month.

Our opening day, Oct. 10th, will soon be here, and we sincerely trust that every member will keep this date in mind and make no other engagement but come to the club and bring with them some friend who will join with us for an active year's work.

Announcement will be made later of the meeting place for this first day, on which day the club members will decide as to the meeting place for the year.

Valley View Improvement Association

Meets this (Friday) evening at the usual place, Sixth and Columbus. The subject of annexation will be discussed in addition to other topics.

HOLD-UP AT TROPICO

Robber Gets Nothing and Loses His Gun

W. Franklin, a newspaper man, was attacked by a robber Tuesday evening while waiting for the 12 o'clock car from Glendale to Los Angeles, the hold-up taking place at the corner of Park avenue and Brand boulevard. Mr. Franklin was sitting in one of the seats in front of the Black & Stevenson real estate office when the robber approached and without warning struck his across the forehead, presumably with a billey. He then commanded Mr. Franklin to throw up his hands, but instead of complying the intended victim grabbed the gun and proceeded to wrench it from the robber. In the tussle which followed the robber struck Franklin across the face several times with the billey, but Franklin succeeded in securing the gun after several minutes of struggle, and as the robber started to run east on Park avenue, fired three times at his fleeing form, but it is believed that none of the bullets took effect.

The midnight car stopped for Franklin and when told the story the passengers scattered throughout the surrounding country but were unable to locate the robber. Mr. Franklin went directly to the Central police station in Los Angeles and reported the affair. He delivered the revolver to Lieut. Murray.

At quite a late hour Tuesday night Franklin received a call to go to Los Angeles, and was on his way when the affair took place. The weapon taken was a 38 caliber Smith & Wesson. It was fully loaded when it came into Franklin's possession and had never been used. The newspaperman's wounds were dressed at the receiving hospital and he walked to his home. The robber is described as being about 22 years old and dressed in a light suit of clothes. Franklin's hat which was stolen was found on Tropico avenue this morning by Glendale's city marshal, who tracked the man to that street.

Saturday night, Sept. 16th, the Equal Suffrage Campaign League met at the home of Mrs. Alice M. Ayers, President P. S. McNutt presiding. The following committees were appointed: Vote polling committee, Dr. Hunt and Mrs. Jessie Russell. Circulation and [illegible] headquarters, Mrs. Hutchinson, Mrs. R. W. Meeker, P. S. McNutt. Open-air meeting, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Gaylord, Mr. Frank Chase. Committee on speakers, Mr. O'Brien, Mr. Doyle. Finance committee, Mr. Fram, Mr. Muhleman, Mrs. Gridley, Mrs. Ayers, Mrs. Blackburn. Committee to collect articles for special edition of Jewell City press, Mrs. Dr. Jessie Russell, Mrs. Gridley, Mr. Doyle, Mr. O'Brien.

Arrangements were made to hold a public meeting every Saturday night, until after Oct. 10th.

Mr. Clifford Howard and Mrs. Cora Lewis have been secured to speak Saturday evening, Sept. 23rd, at Odd Fellows hall. Everybody welcome.

MRS. GAYLORD, Secy.

A parlor meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held Friday, 2:30 p. m., Sept. 29th, at the home of Mrs. Ida Wood, 525 Orange avenue. Mrs. Fannie Gleason, state superintendent of parliamentary usage, will be present and give us a suffrage drill to which I believe every lady in Glendale could listen with intense interest. Come and see.

MRS. GAYLORD.

A DELIGHTFUL EVENING.

Miss Atala Browning of Kenwood street was a charming hostess Wednesday evening to a number of friends who gathered informally at her home.

Five hundred held the attention of all during the fore part of the evening, Miss Myrtle Pulliam and Mr. Dwight Stephenson capturing the head prizes which were two handsome posters.

The guests were then led to the dining room where supper was served. An immense Japanese basket filled with flowers graced the center of the table and dainty Japanese place cards marked covers for the following: Miss Myrtle Pulliam, Miss Emma Pulliam, Miss Berenice Williams, Mr. Dwight Stephenson, Mr. Gus Pulliam, Mr. Owen Emery, Mr. George Mitchell and the hostess.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to music, after which the guests departed each feeling that the evening had been an unqualified pleasure from the moment of arrival until the moment of departure.

Glendale Valley Improvement Association

The regular meeting of the association, Thursday evening of next week, the 28th, will be addressed by Frank G. Tyrrell, who appeared before the association once before and is known as one of the most eloquent orators in the state. He will speak on the "Initiative, Referendum and Municipal Ownership."

JUDGE McCOMAS AT SANITARIUM.

C. C. McComas, Esq., the veteran public prosecutor of Los Angeles County, who has served as chief deputy under several administrations, is at the Glendale Sanitarium. Mr. McComas is taking treatment for paralysis, which has crippled his lower limbs.

PACIFIC (SUNSET) TELEPHONE COMPANY ADDS SAN FERNANDO TO ITS SYSTEM.

Pacific Subscribers Have Access to Three Hundred New Stations.

The local office of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company has announced the conclusion of negotiations whereby another large independent telephone company has been added to its system. This latest connection took place last week at San Fernando and thereby over three hundred subscribers in that city and its surrounding territory are given the benefit of the Pacific Company's long distance service. Likewise all subscribers of the Bell company now have direct communication with every telephone working out of the San Fernando exchange.

The connection is similar to that put into effect August 1st with the Home Telephone Company of Covina, operating at Covina, Azusa, Glendora, Puente, Bassett, Rowland, Irwindale, Charter Oak and Baldwin Park.

Lane; second prize a jack knife given by Goodenow; tug of war, on horseback, prize by committee; tug of war on foot, box of cigars given by F. M. Ferguson; cow pony race, prize by committee; burro race, prize a bale of hay, donated by A. Sence; potatoe race on horseback, prize by committee; mystery race; bucking horse ride.

At 2 p. m. Gov. Johnson will speak followed by U. S. Senator John D. Works, and State Senator Lee C. Gates.

A concert by the Examiner boys band.

At close of speaking there will be a baseball game by Boston Bloomer Girls versus All Stars. This is scheduled for 3:30 p. m.

In the evening there will be a band concert and other amusements furnished by various concessionaires.

ANNEXATION NEWS.

The campaign for the annexation to Glendale of the West Glendale section, at the election to be held October 14, goes on quietly, and up to the present time no considerable opposition has developed. A second project is now in process of preliminary adjustment, and it is probable that a petition will be presented to the next meeting of the trustees, or the one following, for the annexation of territory east of Brand boulevard and north to Stocker street. From Stocker and Brand the line will run eastward to the Thom ranch, thence southward to a point approximating 150 feet north of the present city boundary, thence eastward to a point 200 feet west of Verdugo road, then northward to some undetermined point above the junction of Glendale avenue and Verdugo road, which the line will cross, to a point a hundred and fifty feet or so east of that road, thence south to the present city boundary. This description is only approximately correct, but will give a fair idea of the additional territory that it is proposed to annex. Except for the section along the boulevard for about three blocks eastward, it contains few people. In that part of the territory, however, there are about sixty-four voters, and of this number forty-seven by actual canvass are reported to favor the project, only five or six being reported in actual opposition.

It was at first proposed to take in quite a large section of the Thom and Ross ranches, but the representative of these properties gave assurance that the owners would co-operate in the expense of controlling the wash, and as such control is one of the objects of the annexationists, the committee decided to leave out these properties except for the narrow strip indicated above.

THE MASS MEETING.

The meeting called for last Tuesday evening at the High School to hear the report of committees and take action in regard to the "Wash" was a failure on account of the few people present. About twenty men assembled on the school porch and were called to order by Chairman White of the Glendale board of trustees. About half of those present were from Casa Verdugo, and Mr. Stanton spoke as an engineer in regard to what he thought should be done to protect the banks of that sometime stream. Mr. Woodberry made a report for the committee, which was discussed briefly. Mr. Sidney Dell moved that the meeting adjourn until Tuesday evening next, which was done. An attempt will be made to get out a good representation of the people, for the subject is an important one.

ACCIDENT HAPPENS TO FUNERAL PARTY.

While the body of Willard J. Boyer, who died at his home at 205 Maryland avenue Monday morning, was being transferred from his home to the Forest Lawn cemetery, one of the coaches bearing several mourners was struck by a Pacific Electric car. The accident occurred at about 11 o'clock. The fender of the car was destroyed and the carriage was badly damaged, but the occupants not hurt. A hoof was nearly torn from one of the horses that were drawing the carriage.

The funeral was conducted by the Pulliam Undertaking Company.

EXCITING TIMES IN OLD ENGLAND

(Contributed)

A well-known Oxford professor writing on "English Governance" seven years ago said: "The Lords cannot prevent reform or even revolution, if the electorate is in earnest and has a ministry to its mind." Such a condition appears now to have arisen by a series of almost fortuitous events, which have united on one question, many otherwise antagonistic forces. And as has so often been the case in recent years the liberal and conservative elements are so evenly balanced that the strong Irish Nationalist party is able to turn the scale in any direction, and in the present struggle they are said to be dictating in the person of Mr. John Redmond, the policy of the government towards the House of Lords preparatory to forcing an Irish Home Rule bill on the English people. It would be perfectly just and proper to give Ireland Home Rule if the Irish people themselves were unanimous on the question. But they certainly are not. A very large and influential minority are strongly opposed to it. And unfortunately, their opposition is based on an irreconcilable religious difference, the advocates of Home Rule being entirely Roman Catholics while those opposed to it are all Protestants. Those well acquainted with current events in the north of Ireland entertain no doubt that the final passage of a Home Rule bill would be the signal for civil war between the two factions.

The Unionist party in the Commons and Lords claim that the question of Home Rule has not been placed squarely before the electorate; and so long as the Lords possessed the veto power, no bill could pass until the country had clearly expressed its will at the polls. And this has always been one of the chief functions of the second chamber. It could not upset the verdict, but it could take care that the issue was placed properly before the court. It could insure suspense of judgment until the national tribunal had weighed and examined the arguments.

At the last general election the government were pledged to secure the passage of some kind of reform for the House of Lords; and the Lords themselves were perfectly willing and ready to entertain any reasonable measure of reconstruction of their ancient House. With this object Lord Lansdowne introduced an admirable and well considered scheme of reconstitution which should command the assent of all reasonable minds.

As reconstituted by this bill the House of Lords would contain rather less than 350 members composed as follows: 100 Lords of Parliament elected by the whole body of hereditary peers, 120 Lords of Parliament elected by popular vote for electoral districts to be formed by commissioners throughout the kingdom. 100 Lords of Parliament appointed by the king on the advice of the government of the day in proportion to the strength of parties in the House of Commons. Seven spiritual Lords of Parliament consisting of the archbishops of Canterbury and York and five other bishops elected by the House of Bishops, and 16 peers who have held high judicial office. The term of office of a Lord of Parliament to be 12 years, one-fourth as nearly as possible of each category retiring every third year. In introducing the bill Lord Lansdowne explained that it prevented any peer from sitting in the House of Lords merely on account of hereditary rights; and that by its operation the House would be strengthened and reinforced by new elements from outside. The government, however, could not accept these reasonable propositions, probably because some of their heteregeneous following held them to a much more revolutionary course. The Labor party make no secret that they desire the total abolition of the House of Lords, and during the passage of the Veto Bill through the House of Commons refrained from interfering with the government program, being apparently satisfied to draw the teeth of the old lion preparatory to finishing him off at a future date.

So the celebrated parliament bill was introduced by the government to destroy the veto power of the Lords. By its provisions a bill may be vetoed twice by the Lords, but on coming from the Commons a third time it will become law, the three passages to cover a period of not less than two years. The bill passed its three readings in the Commons and went to the Lords who made a few reasonable amendments to it and returned it to the Commons. The government would not accept the amendments, however, and demanded the passage of the bill in its original form, threatening to advise the king to create a sufficient number of new peers to secure its passage if the Lords persisted in their opposition. Now the king cannot take either side in party politics, but must nevertheless act on the advice of his responsible ministers. The Lords were thus under compulsion—held up, much as a man looking down the barrel of a six-shooter in the hand of a determined burglar. Lord Londonderry, an Irish peer, correctly summarized the situation in these words: "Were there the slightest chance of defeating the parliament bill I would fight it to the bitter end. But as the passage of the bill is inevitable the question is, which is the lesser evil; the bill plus or minus the new peers. I have no doubt the latter is the less objectionable. With the additional new peers it would be possible to rush the Home Rule bill through within six months—without them the Unionist party would have two years to bring prominently before the electorate the dangers that must ensue if Home Rule were granted to Ireland. Create the new peers and by this time next year we may have a sanguinary civil war raging from end to end of my unhappy country." A majority of the peers therefore thought it wiser to allow the passage of the bill depriving themselves of their ancient power of veto.

As Lord Roseberry wrote on the occasion, "The House of Lords will be compelled to watch with folded arms the passage of every measure which a revolutionary and unscrupulous government may choose to propose, measures to which even the nation is strongly opposed."

And there is scarcely a limit to the mischief a demoralized collection of self-seeking and ambitious groups of politicians might do, if there were no second chamber, to compel reflection and reconsideration, and to enforce a reference to the people, before the rights and liberties of whole sections and large classes of the population were traded away.

"Down with the House of Lords," is a revolutionary political cry which has tickled the fancy of ironoclasts in England for the last fifty years. But by the collective wisdom of her sons the illustrious second chamber, which has stood as the bulwark of the British constitution in the past, has hitherto survived all the temporary storms of passion and prejudice.

Quoting a writer in the San Francisco Argonaut:

"If in recent times the Lords have not made the most of their opportunities, if they have sometimes exhibited the cloven foot of self-interest, and class-arrogance, it must still be said of them that they have played a noble part in the advancement and prestige of England, and wrought mightily for the world's progress. If the House of Lords has not been in the modern sense a representative body, it has nevertheless represented England in the spirit of her largest aims and character and of her highest achievements. Nothing can be more certain," continues the Argonaut, "than that the people of England would not willingly witness the absolute ending of the Lords; few indeed would consent that an institution so glorified in tradition, so honored in history, so useful in commanding the participation in government of first-class contemporary talent, should at a stroke be eliminated from the scheme of national life."

And when the nation settles down to work on the reform of the House of Lords, it surely will insist that the task shall engage the services and the result embody the will of not the Radical party only, but shall express the intelligent sentiment and the essential spirit and genius of the British race. Anglican.

MONTHLY BULLETIN OF CALIFORNIA DTVELOPMENT BOARD.

August 31, 1911.

This bulletin is based on special reports by reliable authorities in various counties covering nearly every section of the state.

Weather review and outlook has been prepared by request by Prof. Alexander G. McAdie, U. S. Weather Bureau, San Francisco:

"August, like July, was a good month from an agricutural point of view. Fruits ripened slowly, but there were no adverse conditions. The water supply was abundant for all purposes. There have been few Augusts when the general conditions were so satisfactory. The usual high temperatures during the afternoon in the interior were not noted this year. The mornings were comparatively cool. Along the coast there has been the usual amount of fog, and temperatures have been a few degrees below the normal. Taken as a whole the summer thus far has been an exceptionally pleasant one for the prevalence of fog along the coast. The winds have been mostly southwest. The snow cover melted gradually and, while the rivers carried full loads of water, there was no damage from overflows. The season was a favorable one for tourists and travelers in the mountains. Waterfalls in the Sierra maintained a large volume of flow until late in August. This is unusual. There were no hot, desiccating winds and no extremely high temperatures."

The California-Burbank exhibit completed and ready for use in the big Land Shows of the East. This exhibit is to be the feature of the shows at Chicago, Pittsburg and New York.

The exhibit of the state of California at the International Exposition at Turin, Italy, is attracting unusual attention. Thousands of people crowd around the cases of fruit and the three relief maps of the Panama canal.

Grain crops have yielded above the ten-year average on the whole, and some sections report very heavy yield.

Wheat shows increase of gluten, due to improved quality of seed.

Hay and alfalfa have shown up well despite drawbacks earlier in the season.

The California sugar production will break the record. Sugar beets are above the average in yield and the sugar content is high. Factories are active and making large daily records. Drying plants for the pulp are in operation and promise quite an addition to the value of the industry.

Hops are turning out well, both in yield and price. Conditions obtaining this season will stimulate planting next year.

Potatoes, onions and beans are giving good yields, comparing well with a full crop. Other field vegetables are good and shipping and canning are active.

Walnuts and olives in some sections will make big crops.

Cotton picking is going on in Imperial and the yield per acre is better than last year. The crop is estimated at 12,000 bales.

Citrus fruit shipments to date amount to some 45,000 carloads, about 40 per cent more than last year. Large, new plantings are being made.

Shipments of deciduous fruits, though being late, are fast nearing the 1910 mark. Grape shipments will be heavy and the quality is unusually good.

Wine rgapes are bringing from 30 to 50 per cent more than in 1910.

Canning and drying of fruits is still active in their respective sections.

No failures of fruit of any kind and good markets have been very encouraging to the growers.

Dredge, quartz and placer mining are showing renewed vigor. Some rich strikes have been reported.

Oil development continues and new enterprises are being set on foot every day. The production for the first six months was at the rate of over 7,000,000 barrels for the year—the record.

Capital is being attracted by the many opportunities of permanent investment in all parts of the state. Colonization and new irrigation enterprises are being set on foot and older ones are being rapidly carried out. A 5000-acre tract in Tehama county for colonization is a late purchase by San Francisco, Oakland and Berkeley capitalists.

Railroad extensions and betterments are quite active.

State, county, municipal, as well as private construction, is active in all sections. Contracts have been let for 30 miles of concrete sidewalk in the addition to Willows.

The Westinghouse Air Brake Co. is said to be arranging to establish a plant at Emeryville, Alameda county.

The secretary of state reports 1699 new registrations of auto vehicles for the month of July.

O'Connell's Wonderful Oratory.

Daniel O'Connell, the Irish orator, spoke in Covent Garden, London, many years ago, and John Coleman, an old English actor, pictured him as follows: "The audience hung spellbound on the words of the great orator. His resonant and magnificent voice, flavored with its rich Hibernian accent, held both soul and sense captive. As for me, my Celtic blood took fire, my heart throbbed with passionate indignation or melted into tears as he dwelt upon the wrongs of my beloved country. Never, surely, was such a born orator! Stern men cried one moment and laughed the next. Strange to say, they never laughed in the wrong place, though once at least he afforded them a unique opportunity. As he approached the end of his oration, carried away by his theme, he took his wig off (a brown 'jazey') put it in his hat and mopped his beautiful bald brow with a great flaming crimson bandanna. The action appeared so natural and appropriate that no one seemed to think it absurd or even incongruous."

ANNEXATION ELECTION NOTICE.

In pursuance of Resolution No. 409 of the City of Glendale, passed and adopted by the Board of Trustees of said City on the 5th day of September, 1911, and an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to provide for the alteration of the boundaries of, and for the annexation of territory to incorporated towns and cities, and for the incorporation of such annexed territory in and as a part of such municipalities, and for the districting, government and municipal control of annexed territory," approved on the 19th day of March, 1889, and any and all acts amendatory thereto.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN That a special election will be held in said City of Glendale, and in certain territory adjacent to said City, and hereinafter described, on Saturday, the 14th day of October, 1911, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified electors of said City, and to the qualified electors residing in said territory adjacent to said City, and proposed to be annexed thereto, and hereinafter described, the following proposition, to-wit:

That it is proposed to annex to, incorporate in and make a part of said City of Glendale, certain territory situated in the County of Los Angeles, State of California, and adjacent to said City, and bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the most Westerly corner of the City of Tropico, as established by an election held March 7, 1911, said corner being on the Southwesterly boundary of the right of way of the Southern Pacific Railway, and, also on the Northeasterly boundary of the City of Los Angeles; thence Northwesterly along said Northeasterly boundary of Los Angeles City to an intersection with the Westerly prolongation of the Northerly line of Lot 27, Block "R" of the Glendale Valley View Tract, as recorded in Map Book 9, Page 157, Records of Los Angeles County, California; thence Easterly along said prolongation and Northerly line of said Lot 27, Block "R," to and along the Northerly lines of Lots 28 to 49 inclusive, of said Block "R" to the Northeast corner of said Lot 49; said corner being also the Southwest corner of Lot 2 of said Block "R;" thence Northerly along the Westerly line of said Lot 2, Block "R," to the Northwest corner of said Lot 2; thence Northerly in a direct line to the Southwest corner of Lot 55, Block "S" of aforesaid Glendale Valley View Tract; thence Northerly along the Westerly lines of Lots 55 and 2 of said Block "S" to the Northwest corner of said Lot 2, Block "S"; thence Northeasterly in a direct line to the southwest corner of Lot 1, Block "T" of aforesaid Glendale Valley View Tract; thence Northerly along the Westerly lines of Lots 1 and 4 of said Block "T" to the Northwest corner of said Lot 4, Block "T"; thence Northeasterly in a direct line to the Southeast corner of Lot 35, Block "U" of aforesaid Glendale Valley View Tract; thence Northerly along the Easterly lines of Lots 35 and 6 of said Block "U" to the Northeast corner of said Lot 6, Block "U"; thence Northerly in a direct line to the Southwest corner of Lot 17, Block "V" of aforesaid Glendale Valley View Tract; thence Northerly along the Westerly lines of Lots 17, 16, 15, 14, 13, 12, 11, 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, and 3 of said Block "V" to the Northwest corner of said Lot 3, Block "V"; thence Northerly in a direct line to a point on the North line of Fourth Street, said point being 30 feet Westerly, along said North line, from the Easterly line of that subdivision of a part of Rancho San Rafael, known as Hahnes subdivision, and, shown on a map recorded in Miscellaneous Records, Book 5, Page 314, Records of Los Angeles County, California; thence Northerly along a line parallel to and 30 feet Westerly, measured at right angles from the Easterly line of said Hahnes subdivision, and its Northerly prolongation to an intersection with the Westerly prolongation of the Northerly line of Lot 37 of Oliver's West Glendale Tract as recorded in Map Book 9, Page 58, Records of Los Angeles County, California; thence Easterly along said prolongation and Northerly line of said Lot 37 to the Northeast corner of said Lot 37; thence Easterly in a direct line to the Northwest corner of Lot 38 of said Oliver's West Glendale Tract; thence Easterly along the Northerly line of said Lot 38 to and along the Northerly lines of Lots 39, 40 and 41 of said Oliver's West Glendale Tract to the Northeast corner of said Lot 41; thence Easterly in a direct line to the Southwest corner of Lot 115 of Pioneer Investment and Trust Co.'s Glendale Place, recorded in Map Book 8, Page 122, Records of Los Angeles County, California; thence Easterly along the Southerly lines of said Lot 131 to the Southeast corner thereof; thence Easterly in a direct line to the Northwest corner of Lot 1 of H. M. Binford Tract, reorded in Map Book 10, Page 28, Records of Los Angeles County, California; thence Easterly along the Northerly line of Lots 1, 2 and 3 of said H. M. Binford Tract to the Northeast corner of said Lot 3; thence Southerly along the Easterly line of said Lot 3 to the Southeast corner thereof; thence Southerly in a direct line to the Northeast corner of Lot 13 of the Griffith Tract as recorded in Map Book 10, Page 25, Records of Los Angeles County, California; thence Southerly along the Easterly lines of Lots 13, 14, 15 of said Griffith Tract to the Southeast corner of said Lot 15; thence Southerly along a line parallel to the center line of Central Avenue, as said avenue is shown on a Map of Glendale Boulevard Tract recorded in Map Book 5, Page 167, Records of Los Angeles County, California, to its intersection with the northerly line of the City of Glendale; thence Westerly, Southerly, Westerly, and Southerly following the various courses of the Northerly and Westerly boundary line of the City of Glendale to its intersection with the Northerly line of Watts Subdivision of a part of the Rancho San Rafael as the same is recorded in Book 5, Page 200 and 201 of Miscellaneous Records of Los Angeles County, California, said Northerly line being also the Northerly boundary line of the City of Tropico; thence Westerly, Northwesterly, Westerly, Northerly and Westerly following the various courses of the Northerly boundary line of the City of Tropico to the point of beginning.

That for the purpose of said election the voting precinct denominated as Annexation Election Precinct No. 1, with the following boundaries, and the place at which the polls will be opened in said City of Glendale has been established and designated, and the following named officers of such election for such voting place in such municipal corporation, have been appointed, to-wit:

"Annexation Election Precinct No. 1."

Comprising all the territory of the present City of Glendale with all and the same boundaries as the corporate limits and boundaries of said City.

Polling Place: Room occupied as "City Hall," 708 West Fourth Street, in said City of Glendale.

Inspector, Frank S. Chase.
Judge, Benjamin H. Nichols.
Judge, O. A. Welling.

That for the purpose of said election the voting precinct denominated as Annexation Election Precinct No. 2 with the following boundaries, and description, and the place at which the polls will be opened in such territory so proposed to be annexed has been established and designated, and the following named officers of such election for such voting place in said new territory have been appointed, to-wit;

"Annexation Election Precinct No. 2."

Comprising all that portion of Los Angeles County, State of California, contiguous and adjacent to the said City of Glendale, as described and embraced and included within the boundaries of the said new territory proposed to be annexed to said City of Glendale, and hereinbefore particularly described, to which description reference is hereby made for particulars.

Polling Place: Tent, on Southwest corner Fifth Street and Central Avenue.

Inspector, James F. Tatlow.
Judge, David D. Cheney.
Judge, Edward A. Carvel.

The qualified electors of said City of Glendale and the qualified electors residing in said territory so proposed to be annexed and hereinafter described, are hereby invited to vote upon such proposition by placing upon their ballots the words "For annexation," or "Against annexation," or words equivalent thereto.

The polls at said election shall be opened at six o'clock in the morning of the day of said election and shall be kept open until six o'clock in the afternoon of the same day when the polls shall close except as provided in Section 1164 of the Political Code of the State of California, as amended by Act approved March 20th, 1909.

That ballots used as such election, and the opening and closing of the polls, and the holding and conducting of such election shall be in conformity, as far as may be, with the general laws of the State of California, concerning elections.

Dated: September 13, 1911.

CHAPTER XXIV.

He had scarcely finished speaking when a bell in some steeple near them tolled out a long, strident note, then another; then it began a rapid clanging. A distant factory whistle joined it. Both men sprang to their feet, their hands gripping the window sill, and leaned far out. Another whistle, two, a dozen, broke in with their deafening noise. It seemed that of a sudden every bell and every whistle in the city had been given frantic life. Into the pandemonium of sounds there was suddenly injected a new and more sinister one, the sharp crack of rifles and then measured volley after volley. Shrieks and groans and shrill screams of anguish arose into the midnight air, and in each human cry, whether of anger or agony, there was a damning accusation of Kelvin, though one that fell on deaf ears so far as pity or remorse was concerned.

"Well," said he, with a sigh, "it has come."

Rensselaer's eyes were glistening.

"I regret to leave it, even for a day," he declared. "This is the moment I have longed for all my life, but Pellman will be able to manage things here. I could not be everywhere, and I have good generals at every station, I know. Think, Kelvin, what this means. If Blagg's threats are right at this identical moment this same hell has broken loose in every city in the United States."

The telephone bell behind them rang sharply. Sam sprang to answer it.

"All right, suh," said he and turned to Kelvin. "Everything is ready. They ah waiting foh yo'."

"Tell them we will be right down," directed Kelvin.

As they turned to go a roseate glow mounted the sky behind the dome of the capitol. They paused a moment and watched it turn to carmine.

"Fire!" announced Kelvin grimly. "I had counted this as a part of the cost, but I hope the destruction may not be great."

Outside the entire block was thronged with men in khaki standing about a hollow square of fourteen automobiles, while at the ends of the block, upon the cross streets, there surged masses of people, frantic and howling, not yet formed into the terrible unity of purpose that was to come. Kelvin stepped into a closed automobile with Rensselaer and Sam and two of his most dependable guards. Peavy, ashen gray and protesting, ran back under the porte cochere.

"A BAD OMEN," HE SAID.

"Indeed, Ah cain' go, Mistah Kelvin," Peavy declared, listening with terror to the vengeful voice of the mob. "Ah ain' well."

Sam immediately jumped out after him.

"Git back in yo' place!" he commanded.

"Now yo' all go 'way from me, Sam!" cried Peavy. "Ah ain' got no time to projec' roun' wid yo'! Ah ain' well, Ah tells yo'!"

"Sit back on yo' place!" repeated Sam.

The sharp voice of Kelvin came from the automobile.

"Leave him there, Sam. We don't want him. He will be worse than useless to us."

"All right, suh, Ah'll leave him heah, then. Jes' one minute."

There was the wail as of a lost soul from Peavy as Sam, gripping his powerful fingers around Peavy's neck, bore him to the floor. He knelt over him for just a moment, while Peavy's legs struggled convulsively. Then he jumped up by the chauffeur, and Peavy lay still where Sam had left him.

Kelvin uttered no word of protest to Sam, but he turned to Herbert with a return of that chill feeling which had twice before oppressed him this night.

"A bad omen," he said.

Herbert laughed lightly.

"There will be a thousand bad omens before we are through with this," he predicted, "but I think that even Peavy would have been safe in this flying wedge of ours."

The automobile rolled out into the street and took its place in the center of the hollow square. Both before and behind it were six automobiles, three abreast, and one was upon each side. Each of these was a seven passenger car, and in the tonneau of each rested, upon a tripod, its sweep above the head of the chauffeur, a cylinder of shining brass. Behind each cylinder stood a stalwart soldier in khaki, and two others sat upon the seat, each soldier was further accoutered with rifles and small arms, and thus, surrounded by fourteen Gatling guns and spare men to man them, the fifteenth automobile, which contained Kelvin, took command of the expedition. There was a shrill whistle from Rensselaer, the soldiers fell away from before the machines like chaff, and the strange battery sprang forward.

Upon the cross street at the end of the block the people quickly gave way, but out from an intersecting avenue two blocks beyond, a fanatical mob, shouting and cursing, turned and bore straight toward them. Guns could be seen on shoulders and torches were flounted. From the forward automobile there came a sharp crackling, a succession of staccato snaps like the ripping of shingles from a roof. The running mob stopped. It fell back, it scattered like chaff, and in an instant more the autos, keeping evenly abreast, bumped and jerked over a pavement strewn with sickeningly soft impediments. So through the city and out into the country they swept to roads where they could go but two abreast and sometimes but single file. But always Kelvin was in the center, and never was there any interference. A half mile northeast of the city the headlights flared on a detachment in unmistakable khaki on both sides of the road, and these saluted as the imperial escort swept by and cheered and, closing in behind, marched at double quick.

The ringing of that first deep toned knell in Washington had been simultaneous with the clang of the same grim death watch from east to west and from north to south. George Blagg's own hand had pressed the wireless key which had sent the message flashing in every direction across startled space. Eager fanatics had received it and swarmed an ill clad, unkempt, underfed horde to avenge the follies of society upon itself. The horror of it was that they did not attack the soldiery direct, as Blagg had planned, but the better nourished citizens, for Blagg's original secret organization, bound together with some idea of order, with some sense of philanthropic motive, with some plan of warfare against the "imperial army," was now augmented by a wild, disordered herd of the criminally inclined, who, seeing that law and order were swept away, turned to mad license.

Out into the residence districts they swept in packs, like starving wolves, and sickening scenes of horror ensued. Wherever a proud home reared itself, a monument to the industry or the wit or the greed of some man, there were murder and pillage and rapine, all ending in the torch, and when the mob swept on it left behind it but a leaping blaze to light its way. The authorities were worse than powerless. An all seeing eye sweeping that night across the North American continent would have found the land reddened by these many pyres, which lighted a redness still more terrible, for not only men and women were put to death in this maniacal orgie of reprisal, but little children were slaughtered as they ran shrieking from warm beds. No night in all the history of the world had paralleled this; no blood lust was ever so hideously satiated! no carnage was ever so widespread, for this one smeared a continent with blood.

While this raving debauchery took place over the length of the land, from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the lakes to the gulf, three separate concourses crept under cover of the night, one from the north and one from the south and one from the east, convergent upon Forest Lakes, where the prize coveted of each army—Breed's $1,500,000,000 in solid cash—lay hidden beneath the library cellar. The first of these concourses, the one from the north, had crept silently forward all night long. These bore no trace of uniform, but each man carried over his shoulder his rifle or his shotgun. Some had belts for ammunition, and others carried their pockets full. They were grim, stern men, sane human beings of the country districts whose eyes and whose minds were clear to see the right and the wrong of things, and their ranks constantly grew. As each detachment joined them a stern voice called: "Halt! Who comes?" And then into a listening ear was whispered by each new adherent of the ranks, "Liberty and the republic!"

Nearer, upon the road from the east, a far different army, like a giant, nervous snake, came jerking along the dark road at much greater speed. It was composed of undersized men for the most part, ranging from bloated faced and blear eyed youths to bloated faced and blear eyed middle age, and there were bedraggled women far more fiendish of visage than the men. They danced, many of them, as they marched, and always they sang, sang the blood maddening song of the "Marseillaise," and never, even in the days when the tricolor received its baptism of blood, was the "Marseillaise" a more terrible song than on this night. They broke open bakeries and meat shops, groceries and saloons, gorging themselves with what they wanted and wasting what they did not, offsetting expostulation with blows and resistance with murder. Men in their lusts heard and paled and women and children whimpered in fear, and woe betide any who came in their path, for by and by they maimed and killed in mere wanton sport.

In a carriage drawn by two gray horses taken by force from a bewildered farmer there rode tall, gaunt George Blagg, and by his side sat Lillian Breed, her gown, once a rich creation of red silk, soiled and tattered, the jaunty hat she had once worn replaced by a gay colored silk kerchief that she had knotted about her black hair. Beautiful even in her dishevelment, she was the incarnation of the riotous spirit that had maddened all their following, and she it was who when any period of silence fell for a moment upon the twisting serpent of humanity behind her raised her voice in the wild song of the "Marseillaise." Each time as that hymn of destruction was caught up by those directly about her she would laugh aloud in hysterical glee and, sinking once more beside her consort, would clasp him in a wild embrace and shower kisses upon him.

Nearer still, upon the road from the south, but waiting, there bivouacked a grim company in khaki, men who rested upon a hillside with their guns close by them in orderly formation, ready on the word to spring to their feet at attention. In the road silent sentries patrolled. Farther back, a half mile, a smaller detachment bivouacked; at a half mile farther still another, and so clear to Washington. These, too, were men of the city type, but they were the more stalwart ones, the sturdier class of the unemployed workmen.

And so these three sorts of humanity centered toward Forest Lakes—the virile workmen of the cities, the ratlike undermen, the grim and stern stalwarts of the farms and villages—they in whom still lived the spirit of the constitution, of the Revolution, of the Union!

Spoiled It All.

A farmer went to hear John Wesley preach. Wesley said he would take up three topics of thought. He was talking chiefly about money. His first was, "Get all you can." The farmer nudged a neighbor and said: "This is strange preaching. I never heard the like before. This is very good." Then Wesley discoursed on "Industry," "Activity," "Living to Purpose," and reached his second division, "Save all you can." The farmer became more excited. "Was there ever anything like this?" he said. Wesley denounced thriftlessness and waste, and he satirized the willful wickedness which lavishes in luxury, and the farmer rubbed his hands, and he thought, "All this I have been taught from my youth up," and what with getting and what with hoarding it seemed to him that "salvation" had come to his house. But Wesley advanced to his third head, which was "Give all you can." "Ah, dear; ah, dear," said the farmer; "he has gone and spoiled it all!"

A Deceptive Fish.

A naturalist who is familiar with Ceylon writes: "In the clear water of Colombo harbor it is not uncommon to see fallen and faded leaves of the jak tree floating a short distance below the surface or sinking slowly to the bottom. Certain small fish, commonly known as sea bats, mimic these leaves both in form and color in order to escape detection. Both in shape and color they look when in the water like waterlogged leaves, but when removed from their native element this resemblance is immediately lost. They float in the water half sideways and all swim in the same direction, turning simultaneously. On one occasion Mr. Willey attempted to capture one of these sea bats in a rock pool and directly he made a plunge with the hand net saw nothing except what he took to be a jak leaf slowly and inertly sink to the bottom. To his astonishment, as he withdrew the net the supposed leaf righted itself and darted away."

Calamities of Authors.

Homer was a begger; Plautus turned a mill; Terence was a slave; Cervantes, the author of "Don Quixote," died of hunger; Bacon lived a life of meanness and distress; Raleigh died on the scaffold; Spenser, the charming, died in want; the death of Collins was through neglect, first causing mental derangement; Milton sold his copyright of "Paradise Lost" for £15; Dryden died in poverty and distress; Otway died prematurely and through hunger; Lee died in the gutter; Steele lived a life of perfect warfare with bailiffs; Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield" was sold for a trifle to save him from the grip of law; Savage died in prison at Bristol, where he was confined for a debt of £8; Butler lived a life of penury and died poor; Chatterton, the child of genius and misfortune, destroyed himself.

The Marlin Model 20 REPEATING RIFLE

You can buy no better gun for target work and all small game up to 200 yards.

Without change of mechanism it handles .22 short, long or long-rifle cartridges perfectly. The deep Ballard rifling develops maximum power and accuracy and adds years to the life of rifles.

The solid top is protection from defective cartridges—prevents powder and gases from being blown back. The side ejection never lets ejected shells spoil your head and allows quick, accurate repeat shots. With simple take-down construction, removable action parts,—least parts of any .22—it is the quickest and easiest to clean. A great vacation rifle. Ask any gun dealer.

Couldn't Hurt His Brain.

Strickland W. Gillilan says that Sam Jones and "Sunshine Hawks" of Baltimore, the revivalists, were invited to the home of a good brother and sister in the church. At the dinner table it transpired that the sister had had a sinister purpose in issuing the invitation, for she said: "Mr. Jones, I wish you'd tell my husband that smoking is injurious to him. I know it is, but he won't believe it. I wish you'd tell him, and it might have some influence over him."

"No, sister," said Jones, who was himself an inveterate smoker, "I can't tell him that. Smoking injures only the human brain. And he hasn't any brain to injure, or he wouldn't have married you. Now, sister, I came here to eat—that is what I was invited for—not to lecture. So if you'll carve that turkey, give me a piece of the white meat and Hawks a leg we'll be all right." And that husband's gratitude lives yet.

GLENDALE, CAL., SEPTEMBER 22, 1911

Other sixth class cities are adopting ordinances compelling property owners to clean up their vacant lots and parkways. It is about time that Glendale was getting into line.

The list of corporations which are delinquent on account of not having paid the state corporation tax, contains the names of two or three local concerns. The tax must now be paid with the addition of ten dollars penalty; if not paid by December the charter of delinquents will be cancelled.

Mr. C. M. Lund has handed us a copy of the St. George Outlook, published at St. George, Ga., by relatives of Mr. Lund. It contains an account of a rain storm which is well termed "One of the most remarkable on record." It is stated that in 24 hours by the government's gauge there fell 18 inches of water. It is not surprising to learn that considerable live stock was drowned.

A man was beaten and an attempt made to rob him at a point on Brand boulevard just south of the Glendale city limits the other night. The absence of street lights in that section had no doubt something to do with the attack and the subsequent escape of the criminal. A town well lighted has a better protection by reason of that fact than an occasional policeman affords.

A prominent orator of the equal suffragists refers to the fifty prominent men of Los Angeles banded together to oppose the adoption of amendment No. 8 as "engaged in a fight against women." How awful this would be if it were true! But it happens that the majority of these fifty citizens are married men, having no doubt as high a regard for their wives and for womankind in general as have the husbands of the ladies who demand the ballot and are supporting their spouses in that demand.

Mr. Guy Eddy, the Los Angeles young gentleman who does the purifying business for the city in the role of censor of plays presented on the stage in that virtuous city on our border, did some remarkable work in the way of elimination in the play entitled "The Girl in the Taxi." A saloon in the stage setting was represented with closed outer doors. The closed door (without glass) being contrary to the local ordinance, Mr. Eddy had the thing nailed open. This with some other similar changes enabled the play in the opinion of some, to run a harmless course and helped Mr. Eddy to earn his salary as a censor of public morals.

STORM WATER MEETING.

Judging by the small turn out at the meeting called for last Tuesday evening to discuss the storm water proposition at the high school, it might be supposed that the people of this section are not interested in the matter. If such is really the case their interest should in some manner be aroused, for it is a matter of considerable seriousness. A committee made a report, as related elsewhere in these columns and it was expected that the good work of its members would be followed up by the people, several thousand of whom have an interest in the subject whether they realize it or not. The Verdugo wash has never been among the most serious of the water carrying channels of Southern California and its waters have not caused much damage in the past, but so many homes have been built along its banks in the past few years that the recurrence of a flood similar to many that in years past were comparatively harmless, might now be attended with serious loss of property and the destruction of homes. At any rate, there is a strong probability that something will be done to confine the flood waters to a limited channel and property owners are certainly interested in seeing to it that there be no foolishly extravagant plan adopted which they will have to pay for. The meeting next Tuesday evening at the high school should be well attended.

The San Francisco Argonaut states an important matter very clearly as follows:

"We do not undertake to discuss the matter in detail here, but offer it to the consideration of our readers as one of the phases of the labor question that is of direct interest to the general public. There are 2,000,000 workingmen in the Federation and about one-third as many more in independent labor organizations. The sentiment in the Federation is strongly in favor of the closed shop. There are 90,000,000 people in this country of whom 45,000,000 are at work earning a living. We include in that number the housewives, who work harder and are worse paid than any of us. One worker in twenty, then, is organized, and under most favorable conditions the percentage is not likely to go much beyond one in ten. Even if it should be one out of five or one out of two, there would still be the rest of us to consider. What we are all after is first to take care of ourselves and second, to make the world better for everybody. On the former it is every man for himself with great fighting and confusion; on the latter we can get together now and then in a working majority, and principles are established, results accomplished and progress made. While the labor union is primarily for the benefit of its members, and hence selfish and individual, it is nevertheless of great value to the general good. For that reason it enjoys the favor of public sentiment as no other special interest does. But when it undertakes to draw a hard and fast line around itself, when it seeks to establish an industrial class consciousness and to set up a monopoly for a limited number of workers, it is risking the loss of its best asset—the sympathy of the rest of us—in search of an advantage that is paltry and of short life."

TAKES A MEAN ADVANTAGE.

Lured into recklessness a short time ago by the pernicious example of a Los Angeles contemporary which boasted of having added the Marquis of Queensbury to its list of contributors along sporting lines, we announced to our patrons that we had secured a contributor no less renowned than the Ahkoond of Gooseberry, who would take charge of our pink sheet edition. No sooner, however, did this distinguished foreigner land at Castle Garden than he began to imbibe in far too generous draughts our twentieth century reform atmosphere, with results that left much to be desired from our point of view. Instead of wiring us his impressions as to the influence of the prize fight upon doctors of divinity, or what he thought of Mister Jack Johnson as a pink tea centerpiece, the unassimilated heathen proceeded to set forth his undigested and indigestible ideas about woman suffrage! This diaphanous output will be found in another column. Owing to our carelessness in drawing up a contract with this wily heathen from the region of Timbuctoo, we shall have to submit to his indiosyncrasies, and we do so in the hope that he will finally condescend to see things as they are, and come down from the region of attenuated sophistries and get down to real business. Meanwhile we request that our patrons pay no attention to any views that His Highness of Gooseberry may choose to express, when they are known to be at variance with those advocated by this semi-religious and thoroughly respectable disseminator of news and views!

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT

Heavy Firing on the Affirmative Side This Week—Mrs. Nanno Woods, Dr. D. W. Hunt and the Ahkoond of Gooseberry

COMMUNICATION FROM THE AKOOND OF GOOSEBERRY.

(This titled personage, we are informed, has been in the United States for a prolonged visit, but unlike Admiral Togo, has succeeded in eluding the zealous representations of the Associated Press, and has preserved a complete incognito.)

To the Editor GLENDALE NEWS,

Esteemed Sir: I have read with interest the article by Jeanette L. Gilder quoted by you in the Aug. 25 issue of the NEWS. During my stay in the United States I have observed with special attention the far-famed American woman, of whom the most conspicuous type in the eastern states seems to be the educated, self-supporting woman of what I may call the middle class. These women, whose tastes and affiliations connect them with the more prosperous people of the community, nevertheless, being themselves wage-earners, are in a position to understand the needs and aspirations of the great multitude of humbler toilers. (I have used the conventional adjective, though my observation would scarcely connect the notion of humility with the members of a labor union.) I therefore listen with attention to the words of Mrs. Gilder, both because of her important journalistic position, and because she is a member of the intelligent and sympathetic class to which I have referred.

I am struck however by what at first seemed to be a logical error in Mrs Gilder's argument. She implies that of all the sides of the active life of a citizen today, political activity alone necessarily requires physical prowess. She writes, "I am a great believer in the mental equality of the sexes, but I deny the physical equality." (I am not aware that physical equality is claimed even by my fellow-countrymen of Gooseberry.) "Open every field of learning, every avenue of industry to her, but keep her out of politics. Will mental power qualify women for all the trades and professions, and is it for political activity alone that they pre-eminently need physical power? This does not seem to me reasonable.

I have not, it is true, had an opportunity to observe a national political campaign in America. I have however observed the work of many organizations for public betterment—educational, philanthropic—where definite advance was clearly being made in civic improvement of various kinds, and where either men or women were carrying on prolonged and systematically organized campaigns to enlighten and arouse their neighbors to action. Such activity as this is what in my country constitutes political life, and there we frankly call it by that name. Our men and women form organizations similar to your municipal leagues, and, just as American men and women do, they work long and hard to see that streets and markets are kept clean, that school houses are used to best advantage all the year, that only decent plays are produced in the theaters, etc. Now these same men and women have in my country the power to elect representatives to make their good works more successful by seeing to it that the state does its part. The time and effort required to nominate and elect these representatives is a small detail as compared with the all-year-around work done by the members of these organizations. Your American women in countless numbers are engaged in similar work. Moreover they already read the newspapers, and even form a fair proportion of the audience at political meetings, I am informed. (Mrs. Gilder speaks as if these were strange new duties which would be thrust upon them by the granting of suffrage.)

Apparently in America, however, the separation between ordinary public-spirited activity and political activity is much wider than with us. The work of clubs, committees, leagues and boards requires mental power, and this work women can do and indeed are daily doing. But political activity apparently requires brawn as well as brain. It is not the ballot, I infer, but the fist behind the ballot that counts.

I shall regret to carry home to my people so unfavorable an account as this of the working of democratic government in America, but Mrs. Gilder's article leaves no other conclusion possible.

ALI MHUTAP SHI,
Ahkoond of Gooseberry.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE, WHY NOT.

This is a question that has been before the public for thirty-five years. In 1869 while a student of Michigan university as one of the lecture committee charged with the securing of speakers for our lecture course for the season, we invited Mrs. Cady Stanton and later Susan B. Anthony to speak for us, these pioneer advocates of female suffrage.

I think so far as I am able to investigate and find out from careful study that no one pretends to say woman has no right to vote, but all with one accord acclaim to her that inherent right, but some do say and insist on believing that to vote will not help her in any way, and would be in itself undignified and lowering in its influence. Some people even say this of politics in general and of men who engage in politics as a profession, has such been the case where is the blame; who is at fault. Thus far woman has done no meddling.

This is a progressive age, "we do move" though a Galileo die for the assertion people no longer claim heaven to be a state, but know happiness cannot exist with nothing to aspire to, nothing to accomplish. These are what we may term axiomatic facts. Is woman to be left behind? Do we not claim her to be man's equal, his helpmeet.

Again we read that the suffragists of England have hurt their cause rather than helped the suffrage movement there by their demonstrations, but stop, hold one moment. Let us consider conditions, circumstances, alter the view,—women during our civil war donned the overalls, ploughed, sowed, reaped, mowed. Under the circumstances were they less dignified, less womanly? No. Has any one ever thought less of them. Not that we have heard of. Joan of Arc, look upon her statue of honor as it today adorns France. Does this not for all time answer the question of the dignified, honorable place she made for herself in history, though not strictly in the old beaten path for woman and woman's sphere, woman's work. Or a little later look at the mother and daughter in the late Mexican revolution who when father and son were taken from home, ruthlessly executed without trial or any attempt at justice, this brave little woman and daughter shouldering the gun and swinging the saber to the side, led the Mexican revolutionists on to sure victory, never flinching until the last ditch had been gained and the slayer had met his just deserts, until the revolution has made a complete victory. Are not these women honored today in the heart of every one, of every nation, as loyal patriots? Who dare say nay?

When those women in England only asked a just privilege, guaranteed to them under English law, when parliament denied through her ministers to them this constitutional right, I say when unscrupulous officials refused to them rightful recognition of their demands, were not extreme measures necessary? Can we blame them for their course? Would not men have been honored for doing just what they did? I am not a prophet, but am willing to assert that the time will come when in history the names of those women, aggressive upholders of constitutional rights, will be blazoned high above the names of the officials who unjustly refused their recognition.

Then if the question of suffrage resolves itself into one of simple justice or the right of women to vote, need woman or man question her duty? Can we not trust woman to not lower her position or dignity, but that she will courageously, yea with supreme dignity meet the demands of society, progressive legislation and aggressive democracy on her citizenship, placing herself side by side with husband, brother, son, in responsibility for public officials.

The political war cry today, of the present is "Can we trust the people?" and all parties have given unanimous consent, saying we can. If we cannot then down goes democracy, down comes the republic. I invite the equal suffrage league to inscribe on their campaign banner this inscription. Do you trust the people? We are the people. Give us a chance.

D. W. HUNT.

THE MASCULINE BUGABOO.

Mrs. Nanno Woods in Express.

The Hon. George S. Patton, in his article entitled "Why Women Should Not Vote," presents to the public a befogging mass of statements and deductions in his imposing yet superficial treatment of that masculine bugaboo, "woman suffrage." He plumes himself, however, upon his "clarity of reasoning and right deduction of principle from known fact." Here is a specimen of his logic:

"Politics is modified war," therefore only the warlike and combative half of the race should exercise the privilege of the voting. "Our electoral system of government is the growth of evolution extending back to the beginning of time and is wholly based upon the law of force." Because our forefathers, the tree-dwellers and cave-dwellers of remote ages, fought with their fists and kicked with their feet, the right of self-government today devolves upon the male sex only. Because Mr. Patton's primeval ancestor clubbed my primeval ancestor over the head in order to maintain or regain his supremacy over meat or mate, their female descendants are prohibited forever from the electoral franchise.

"Today," says Mr. Patton, "in every civilized government it is in its last analysis force, and force alone—fighting, physical, brutal force, if you will—that stands behind and gives efficacy to the verdict of the majority cast at the polls." Again: "It is power that rules, physical, coercive ability to enforce obedience to law." And because woman has not sufficient physical strength to pound a fellow citizen into recognition of her vote, she should not vote! Now the maker or framer of the law, and the enforcer of the law, are not necessarily one and the same individual. The master mind makes the law, the hired employe fights to enforce the master's authority. The police, the army, are all paid underlings, consenting for a certain wage to see that the laws framed by legislators are obeyed and maintained; the wage they receive is derived from the taxes levied upon the property of women as well as that of men. But the women are not to have any say as to the disposal of their taxes.

This question of physical brute force is the lowest possible platform from which any man or woman can argue. If carried to its logical conclusion, the argument would reduce the world to heathen darkness, a pandemonium of brute force.

If there were any soundness in this argument of fitness for elective franchise, then every man should be required to prove his physical fitness to vote. Only those fulfilling the military standard should become voters. The weak, the sickly, the degenerate, they are not fit to wield arms in defense of their vote, yet they vote.

Besides, is it true that physical power is the only power that really counts? I have been taught to believe that mental and moral powers are infinitely superior to brute force. Senators and all government representatives are chosen (when graft is conspicuous by its absence) according to their mental ability, not for reason of their physical attributes.

Mr. Patton talks of the man protecting the woman, "drawing the fiery circle of his sword" around her sex. If women have the privilege of voting for or against laws which our elected representatives think wise to frame, will the "fiery sword of protection" be withdrawn? Will the chivalry of husbands and brothers cease? Does Mr. Patton mean that the arm of the male voter will no longer be the "strong arm of her mate" when woman too becomes a voter? I must confess I don't see the point, unless it be that when women go to the booth men's manhood will go to the dogs.

Mr. Patton asks: "Has a single woman outlined a policy in government that indicates real thought or study of our governmental structure?" Is it a sine qua non that every man who votes must fulfill all these qualifications of suffrage?

But what is this? A few lines further we read: "When women now come before legislative bodies with any well thought out plan for advancement of the race"—but I thought not a single woman ever outlined any plan that indicated "real thought or study of our government?" Is Mr. Patton contradicting himself?

"Men must defend the laws, civil and criminal, by onerous and exacting service upon juries." I know of no reason why unmarried or childless women should not serve on juries as well as men; mothers of minor children would naturally be classed with doctors and clergymen, as they are engaged day and night in caring for both souls and bodies. Nor would women object to a poll tax, or to a readjustment of the poll tax by which men and women would share the burden now borne only by the man-half of the American nation.

"Women must bear in mind that the ballot to them does not mean the ballot to the most intelligent of them, but it means the ballot to the day laborer's wife, who, if anything, is more ignorant of public affairs than is her husband." Which means that the majority of feminine voters would come from the uneducated, uncultivated class? But let us finish the sentence: "More ignorant than her husband, who, by the way, is actually frequently one of the most intelligent of voters." Does Mr. Patton blow north and south in the same moment? Can a thing be black and yet white at the same time?

Mr. Patton quotes Mr. Richard Barry's anti-suffrage article in the Ladies' Home Journal, but he does not tell us that Judge Ben Lindsay, in a two-hour speech before the New York legislature last winter, refuted point by point the superficial inaccuracies of Mr. Barry's contributed article. (See the Outlook, September 2.) Surely the children's judge may be supposed to know a thing or two.

"The demand comes from an enthusiastic minority, restless under the imagined restraint of denial of a privilege and eager to enter the field of political controversy and contention." Then follows this misquotation:

"One more unfortunate, weary of life,
Rashly importunate, longing for strife."

It is not to Mr. Patton's credit that he should have made this quotation, and should have applied it to that great army of cultured, enlightened club women of California who are today working so enthusiastically in favor of woman suffrage. The lines misquoted are from a poem written by Thomas Hood, entitled, "The Bridge of Sighs." It alludes to an "unfortunate," an erring woman, somebody's sister, who, helping in her despair to find release from the life of shame into which she had been led by some man, drowned herself in the cold, cold waters of the muddy city river.

Mrs. Leon H. Hurtt will be hostess of the next Third Monday meeting of the Maids and Matrons.

A Blessing to the Farmer's Wife

THE Bell Telephone Service lightens the domestic tasks of the farmer's wife.

In the family circle, the Bell Service is indispensable. It is a constant household companion. It shops for her when she is too busy to go to town. It brings her in close touch with the social life of the community. Loved ones far away may be reached, for the Bell field is almost limitless. It relieves the monotony of life. She CANNOT be lonesome with the Bell Service at her command. It is a constant source of pleasure and profit in the home circle.

The speech, "Nobler Womanhood," delivered at Santa Ana by Mrs. Nanno Woods last Friday, under the auspices of the Political Equality League, was received with volleys of enthusiastic applause. Senator Lee Gates, the other speaker, eulogized it as one of the most powerful, brilliant and notable of all the addresses yet delivered during the Southern California suffrage campaign. Mrs. Woods is to speak in Los Angeles on Wednesday at the Votes for Women Club and has been assigned to several other important meetings between now and October 10.

The "Noble Half Hundred," written by Mrs. Nanno Woods, which appeared in a recent Sunday Tribune, accompanied by seven illustrations, has brought the author many friends. Mr. Reynold Blight of the Los Angeles Fellowship describes it as "a stroke of genius."

MASS MEETING—STORM WATER.
Tuesday Evening, Sept. 26.

Owing to the small attendance at the High School last Tuesday evening, the meeting to receive and act upon the reports of special committees on the storm water problem was adjourned to meet next Tuesday evening at the High School. This is a subject of general inteerst to everyone in Glendale, Tropico, West Glendale and all the nearby community, and a full attendance is hoped for.

GLENDALE STABLES.

Card Playing.

Card playing began in India in the ninth century. It was introduced into Europe by orientals some time prior to the thirteenth century. Saracens popularized the amusement in Spain and Italy. The taste for the game afterward spread to Germany, where it commenced to be indulged in about 1275. Its appearance in France was mentioned in the records of that country in 1393. Heraldic cards were first known in England in 1660.—New York Telegram.

His Trade.

"And you say you have a trade?" asked the kind lady at the door.

"Yes'm," said the tramp; "I'm a worker in precious metals and stones."

"Indeed! And can't you get anything to do?"

"No'm; de perlice and de jewelers are all on to me."

WHERE IS THY BROTHER?

AM I MY BROTHER'S KEEPER?

Crowds Attend Pastor Russell's Address to Richmond Bible Students.

Richmond, Va., August 27th.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle preached here today under the auspices of the International Bible Students Association (Local Branch—unsectarian), composed of the truth-hungry from all denominations. Asked why such great crowds always attend his addresses while the churches of all denominations are complaining of slim attendance, Pastor Russell replied, "The people are thinking. Perplexed by the infidelity and Higher Criticism taught in the principal colleges and pulpits, many desire to have an interpretation of the Bible consistent with itself and not at war with the reverential exercise of reason. The Scriptures foretell our day, saying, 'There shall be a famine in the land; not a famine for bread nor a thirst for water, but for the hearing of the Word of the Lord' (Amos viii, 11). No fairy tales can thoroughly satisfy intelligent thinkers, whose numbers are increasing.

Two services were held—one for the public, considering the great "Hereafter;" the other, which we report, had for its text God's call to Cain after he had slain his brother, and Cain's reply, "Where is thy brother?" —"Am I my brother's keeper?" (Genesis iv, 9). The speaker said in part:—

No one can dispute that individualism, personal independence, personal responsibility has done much for the development of our race. The serfdom and paternalism of the past were unfavorable to individual thought, responsibility and action. No wise and good man would desire to rob his fellows of independence of mind.

"Where Is Thy Brother?"

God's inquiry of Cain implied his responsibility, and teaches us a lesson respecting our responsibility in God's sight for one another. We will begin with the church, the highest type of brotherhood imaginable: We should not be content to split into sects and parties. Whatever was the ignorance of the past which led to the formation of the various creeds and denominations, there can be no excuse for these now, because Christians of all denominations have come to discredit the old creeds.

Every true Christian should realize that today Christianity is being assaulted in its own house and by its professed friends. In the colleges and seminaries of all denominations a battle is raging which threatens the destruction of our Christian faith. Possibly a few are blind to the situation, but the insurgents—the Higher Critics and Evolutionists—realize the situation and are craftily saying to the people, "We are the watchmen upon the walls of Zion; hearken to our cry; all is well!" These Higher Critics seem to have no conscience. They claim that the people must be gradually taken by guile. They encourage them to sleep while they raise over them the banner of infidelity called Higher Criticism.

Many who see the killing of this antitypical Abel shirk the responsibility by saying, "Am I my brother's keeper?" not realizing that from the Divine standpoint they have a responsibility toward every other Christian with whom they are in contact. They should realize that loyalty to God means that they should "show forth the praises of Him who hath called us out of darkness into His marvelous light." In a word, every true Christian, who has made a full consecration of himself to the Lord to walk in the footsteps of the Savior, should waken to the fact that we are in a critical time.

We may be sure that the Cain class of our day will be held accountable for the wilful slaying of their brother, especially to the extent that the brother despised may be a child of God. As God declared that the blood of Abel cried to Him from the ground—cried for justice—so the intimation of the Scriptures is that all injustice of every kind, everywhere, will bring a "just recompense of reward."

"The Desire of All Nations Shall Come."

Most explicitly do the Scriptures declare that "The desire of all nations shall come" (Haggai ii, 7). This declaration is in conjunction with the foretelling of the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom. The reign of righteousness which it will inaugurate will be the ideal of the masses of mankind, although quite probably the overthrow of trusts and combines will for a time, not be viewed sympathetically by some.

The thousand years of Messiah's reign during which His Bride, the Elect Church, will be associated with Him, will be quite sufficient for the equalization of all of life's affairs for the entire race. In His day the righteous shall flourish. In His day evildoers and not the well-doers will be crushed.

Little Dr. Holmes.

Thomas Wentworth Higginson in speaking of Dr. Holmes said:

"He was a very small man physically. Though one of the greatest physicians in the country and one of the greatest wits and writers, he had almost a boyish appearance. I remember when he returned to Harvard to attend a meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa he had a poem to recite, and he had to stand on a table so that all might see him.

"Dr. Holmes had studied in Paris—quite a remarkable thing in those days—and his services as a consultant in serious cases were always in demand. In one serious case the patient was a woman. As her own family physician entered the room with Dr. Holmes, who had been called in, the patient turned around in bed and said indignantly:

"'Doctor, why do you bring that boy into this room?' 'Why,' expostulated the family physician, 'that's Dr. Holmes!' 'He isn't a doctor,' answered the patient peevishly. 'Take him out!'

"And Dr. Holmes had to leave the room, much to his annoyance. Then the family physician got a chance to explain matters, and Dr. Holmes went in, but, as he confessed to me afterward, with very bad grace. He didn't like to be taken for a boy even by a very sick woman."—New York Tribune.

Seeing Your Own Brain.

In Professor Lloyd's work, "The End of the World," the experiment of seeing one's own brain is interesting. The experimenter, with a lighted candle, enters a perfectly dark room. He stands before a black curtain or wall, so that details cannot be seen by the candle's feeble light. The candle is moved laterally to and fro in front of the eyes, keeping it about six inches from the face and just below the tip of the nose. In a few minutes something, as if a thin mist, seems to grow before the eyes. It becomes more definite and gains outline, and then soon one may distinguish the venation and the division of the brain. The theory is that the moving light produces a counter irritation of the nerves that conduct the impression of sight to the brain. The current is reversed, and the brain is pictured on the retina. Then the impression returns through the nerves and affects the brain so that we see it.

Shepherd and Sheep.

A minister was once addressing a Sunday school. It was a Sunday school of little children, and the minister in his address desired to compare himself to a shepherd and his congregation to the shepherd's flocks.

"What are these beautiful animals?" he said, pointing to a drawing on the blackboard.

"Sheep, sheep!" chorused the children.

"And the cloaked figure in the foreground—what is he?"

"A shepherd!" the children cried.

"Exactly," agreed the minister, beaming with satisfaction. "And now, dear children, can you tell me what it is that the shepherd does for the sheep?"

A score of little mouths opened wide, and a score of treble voices cried shrilly:

"He shears 'em!"

Quaint Cures of Old.

For epilepsy wear a ring made from a coffin ring and take seven drops of blood from the tail of a cat. These remedies are equally efficacious either separately or in conjunction. For toothache carry in the pocket the tooth of a soldier killed in battle or eat mouse nibbled bread or trim your nails on a Friday. To cure warts, rub a potato and give the potato to a pig, or rub them with a piece of chalk, then put it in a little bag and throw it across crossroads. Holding the affected finger in the ear of a cat for half an hour was reckoned an excellent remedy for a felon.

Origin of the Word "Farm."

The origin of the word "farm" is as follows: In the Saxons' time the estates which the lords of manors granted to the freemen were at first but for a term of years, with a render of a rent, which in those days was of corn and other produce. The leases so made were called fermes or farmes, but times ensuing turned the produce into money and terms of years to terms of life and inheritance.—Westminster Gazette.

Hopeless.

"I refuse your hand, Mr. Squash," the young girl said coldly, "for two reasons."

"Name them!" Squash cried hopefully. "Name them, and perhaps—who knows"—

"They are," she interrupted, "yourself and another man."—Exchange.

Wide Awake.

Passerby—I thought you were blind.

Mendicant—Well, boss, times is so hard and competition is so great that even a blind man has to keep his eyes open nowadays if he wants to do any business at all.

Holding His Own.

"Stingy, isn't he?"

"You've said it. Why, he holds fast to everything he gets his clutches on and even bolts down his dinner!"

A Sticker.

Ella—He is always hanging around Stella—Yes; I don't believe you could lose him if he were an umbrella.—New York Press.

He that plants thorns must never expect to gather roses.—Pliny.

TROPICO

The Knights of Pythias of this place will enjoy a picnic at Griffith Park next Sunday.

Mrs. Dr. Goettler of Pasadena, was the guest Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Weston of Park avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Ellias are erecting a comfortable bungalow on the Chandler ranch on the west side of the valley.

D. H. Imler departed last Saturday for Imperial, where he will again take charge of the working of his large ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Rice are spending some time at Lindsey, Cal., where their sons, Guy and Jay, are interested in fruit raising.

Miss Kitty Reynolds, who for the past several weeks has been visiting in San Diego, has returned to her home on Central avenue for a short stay.

On Thursday of last week John Hobbs, a member of the Tropico board of trustees, left for his old home in Onida, Ill., where he will pass a month with his mother.

It is reported that Col. W. H. Hallack of Moore avenue, who recently underwent an operation at Clara Barton hospital in Los Angeles, is rapidly improving.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hough are entertaining for several weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Goodpasture and children of Chicago. While here the visitors will take in all of the sights of the country.

Miss Lillian Hancock of Chicago, who is passing some time with friends in Pasadena, was the guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Merrill of Brand boulevard.

Steps are being taken to number all of the houses in Tropico. The trustees have ordered that all houses be numbered, the dividing line for the numbers being Brand boulevard and Tropico avenue.

Ernest J. Morgan and Hal Davenport have formed a partnership and will hereafter conduct a real estate and insurance business at the corner of Tropico avenue and Brand boulevard.

Rev. C. B. Hatch of the Tropico Presbyterian church, delivered an able sermon and presented convincing arguments, Sunday evening. He took for his subject, "Why Women Should Vote."

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Burch entertainged recently their grandson, George Wagner of Denver, Colorado. Mr. Wagner is now residing with his sister, Mrs. C. C. Stanley, and family of Los Angeles.

Ed Weston of the Bungalow Studio tells us this week that he is the winner of first honors in the August contest of Photo Era. His subject is entitled "Gardens," and will be published in either September or October number of Photo Era.

Mr. Carpi, an employe of the Handorf's dairy on the San Fernando road, has been acquitted by Judge Melrose on a charge of polluting the waters of the Los Angeles river. Mr. Carpi, however, was reprimanded before being dismissed.

Mrs. George Peck, formerly Mrs. Susie Miller, treasurer of the Woman's Relief Corps, whose marriage took place very recently, was guest of honor at a party given in G. A. R. hall by the members of the G. A. R. and the W. R. C. A pleasing program was rendered and Mrs. Peck was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. After the program an elaborate repast was served.

We notice that a number of electric cars plying over the P. E. between Los Angeles and Glendale are now bearing the name "Tropico" on the front. This change comes as a direct result of an interview of a committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce with the officials of the railroad company several days ago. The committee also brings back an encouraging report in reference to the cowfence which runs along the company's tracks. It is believed that within a short time this fence will be removed and the boulevard will again present a fairly good appearance. The Tropico Chamber of Commerce is certainly doing some hustling these days.

TROPICO A REAL CITY.

Tropico is now in fact a real city of the sixth class. This was brought about by the fact that since the vote on incorporation six months has elapsed. Hereafter an action to contest or inquire into the right of the city to act in its municipal capacity is barred by the process of law. Already the city trustees are busying themselves in the line of improvements. Bids are now being advertised for for the improvement of Central avenue. It is understood that action will be taken in reference to other streets before long.

WEST GLENDALE

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Patch entertained relatives from Pasadena on Sunday last.

Mr. Louis L. Schremp of British Columbia, is visiting at the home of his brother, J. J. Schremp and family of West Fourth street.

Mrs. Wyman Campbell of Hawthorne street left recently for Terra Haute, Ind., where she will spend some time visiting relatives.

Mrs. S. F. Neil of 1450 Hawthorne street, has taken apartments in Los Angeles for the winter, and Mrs. Payne and daughter, Miss Frances Payne are occupying her home while away.

The Hawthorne Street Improvement association met at the home of Mrs. Grosvenor on Monday evening. The annexation question was discussed and other important questions brought up and talked over, and a very pleasant evening enjoyed.

Miss Bertha Neff, who held a responsible position with the Long Beach sanitarium for some time, has accepted a position in Los Angeles, but will make her home in Glendale with her friends, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Hammond, 1509 Ivy street.

The trustees and all those connected with the West Glendale school regret the resignation of Mrs. Dora L. Gibson as musical instructor of the school but as it was announced in last week's NEWS her work at the high schoo was so heavy as to occupy the entire week. Mrs. Gibson made an entire success of her work while with us, the Boys Orchestra, being a good sample. She will be greatly missed by every one, but Miss Ella White Foster of Los Angeles, who has been elected in her place as supervisor of music, comes highly recommended, and the trustees are confident of her giving excellent satisfaction.

ORDINANCE NO. 144.

AN ORDINANCE DECLARING THE INTENTION OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE TO ORDER THE LAYING OUT, OPENING AND WIDENING OF BRAND BOULEVARD BETWEEN THE SOUTH LINE OF SIXTH STREET AND THE SOUTHERLY LINE OF GRIDER & HAMILTON'S LOMITA PARK, IN THE SAID CITY OF GLENDALE.

PROGRAM MUSIC.

(For the GLENDALE NEWS, by Madame Rudorf.)

Program music is instrumental music that tells us a definite story. Thus, if we name a work, "Climbing the Alps," we are told what to imagine with each ascending passage, with each downward glissando effect. Yet such music is never the highest, for one is apt to lose sight of musical worth in the search of graphic effect. Yet it has been attempted upon the piano for fully two centuries.

Examples which illustrate this school is Bach's Concerto on the departure of a beloved "brother," and Rameau's "La Poule" (the hen) composed in 1720, where the cackling of the domestic fowl is accurately imitated. The first great piece of program music came by Beethoven. It was the Pastoral Symphony. Works can be noble and effective without such photographic effects and without attempting a definite story.

The craving for a story in connection with every musical composition has worked much havoc in musical taste.

The tales that Schuman won his bride by "Warum," or that Beethoven played the first inception of his Moonlight Sonata to a blind girl in a forest, are entirely false and give a sentimentality to two lofty works that are far above the need of those adjuncts.

I do not advocate program music. I am in favor of the to be divined and carried by your own imagination.

How droll this mania of giving names to composers' works from the side of public is best illustrated by one example: the Moonlight Sonata! Now the first movement of the C sharp minor sonate is tragic from the first to last (possibly a soul in distress) but the last movement is stormy, passionate, the exact opposite of a moonlight vision.

And this sonata is known the world over under the misnomer, The Moonlight Sonata.

THE SANE LIFE.

That life is sane which is thrifty, provident, practical, as well as simple, generous and idealistic. Which asks no advice and makes no apologies, follows no stale conventional standards, but standing firmly, challenges the best in other lives and appropriates the best for its own.

That life is sane which has in it enough fresh air to breathe freely, enough sunshine to kill disease, enough rain to make it fruitful, enough wind to arouse the spirit, which seeks sound labor for every day, and wholesome play for every holiday, realizing that both work and play in their just ratio are essential and that both may be beautiful.

That life is sane which claims for its own a few good books, pictures or statues, or the right to enjoy them, a little good music, and above all good friends; which recognizes its end in service, and its fulfillment in love.

That life is sane which meets the natural course of events naturally, glorifying as it passes, birth, growth, maturity, parenthood, death, step by step with perfect ultimate faith and this sane life may be lived even now.

MARGUERITE.

(For the GLENDALE NEWS.)

Little fairy! household pet!
Was there ever floweret,
Half so sweet?
Little heart so pure and true,
How could we without thee do,
Marguerite?

Was thy voice from heaven lent,
By angelic singer sent—
I would know.
There is naught so sweet to me,
Seems like holy melody
Soft and low.

Happy face so pure and fair,
Rose and lily blending there,
All their sweets.
Ne'er did smile possess the pow'r
To attract and win like our Marguerite's.

Lustrous blue are baby's eyes,
Sparkling like a June day's skies,
Bright and fair.
And a glint of summer's gold
Lies on ev'ry coil and fold,
Of her hair.

Heaven bless thee, little dear,
May the angel ever near,
Guide thy feet.
Ne'er may cloud rest on thy brow,
Be it ever fair as now,
Marguerite.

PANAMA PACIFIC EXPOSITION.

When President William Howard Taft turns the first spade of earth in Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, for the Panama Pacific International Exposition, a record crowd is certain to be in attendance. The Southern Pacific Company has just announced special excursion rates to San Francisco, and Oakland, for this occasion and already the inquiry for accommodations on the trains on the selling dates, has been enormous. A rate for the round trip of a fare and a third will be in effect October 11, 12, 13 and 14, the return trip to be made by midnight of October 16. The special rates will cover the territory between Redding, Bakersfield and San Luis Obispo. Similar rates to Sacramento, where President Taft will stop for about two houhs, will also be in effect October 12 and 13, returning the fourteenth.

TO HOLD EQUAL SUFFRAGE MEETING.

An open meeting will be held by the Glendale Equal Suffrage League at I. O. O. F. hall next Saturday evening. Mrs. Cora Lewis and Clifford Howard of Los Angeles will be the speakers of the evening. This will be the first of a series of public meetings to be held by this organization of which P. S. McNutt is president.

COUNTRY CLUB NOTES.
Maids and Matrons.

On Monday afternoon the Maids and Matrons of the Glendale Country Club met for their regular Third Monday meeting in the club parlors.

The artistic receiving rooms were adorned with a profusion of roses in an effective decorative scheme.

Mrs. T. W. T. Richards of Riverdale Drive was the charming and competent hostess of the occasion, owing to whose efforts the gathering was an unalloyed pleasure. The afternoon was Southern in character and all the details were planned to that effect. Mrs. Merrell Batsell of Sherman, Texas, rendered a number of readings in Southern dialect in such a delightfully charming manner as to win the hearts and applause of all. Miss Edith Cutler, accompanied by Miss Emma Williams, sang several Southern lullabys replying to encore after encore in appreciation of her art. By special request Mrs. C. M. Turk amused and won universal praise with a number of readings in Irish dialect.

Appropriate refreshments were then served followed by a pleasant period of social discourse between the members and their guests, both out of town visitors and newcomers in the valley. When the time of departure was regretfully recognized, one and all realized that Mrs. Richards had been hostess of one of the very pleasantest gatherings the organization had even known. Beyond a doubt the afternoon had formed a new and especially strong link in the chain which binds the members of the Maids and Matrons together in an enduring friendship.

CITY TO BUY 5254 ACRES.

Los Angeles decided yesterday, Aug. 30, through the board of public works, to add 5254.71 acres to its land holdings. This tract will cost but $6568.39, as the city will buy it of the government at $1.25 per acre.

The tract is the site of the proposed Long Valley reservoir, above the Owens river valley. The city wants to acquire it so that, if necessity arises, a dam can be built at the lower end to store water.

The board adopted a resolution of purchase and authorized Ben H. Yandell, attorney for the city of Independence to pay the purchase price to the receiver of the land office at Independence. The tract is in Mono county. —Los Angeles Examiner.

OLD SETTLERS' PICNIC.

The annual picnic of the Old Settlers' Association will be held Saturday of next week, the meeting place to be announced in our next week's issue. All old settlers in the valley, wherever located, are particularly invited to attend.
